What is speech therapy?

Speech, language and communication underpins everything we do. We often take these skills for granted but many children struggle to communicate.

A child with speech, language and communication needs may present with the following problems:

- * Delayed/disordered speech and/or language development
- * Difficulty putting sentences together so that they can be understood (difficulty expressing themselves)
- * Having difficulty in understanding what others say (receptive language difficulty)
- * Glue ear causing intermittent hearing impairment which affects language development
- * Difficulty using spoken and non verbal communication to interact socially (pragmatic difficulty)
- * Verbal dyspraxia (a motor co-ordination difficulty affecting pronunciation)
- * Mixing up speech sounds in words (phonological disorder)

What can a speech and language therapist do for a child with a communication difficulty?

- Carry out an initial assessment of the child's skills in the following areas: understanding & using language, speech sounds & social communication skills.
Assessments can be done through the use of standardised assessment tools and/or observations in the child's natural environment
- Treatment using play, to address the child's difficulties
- Advice to carers/schools about how to support and develop the child's language skills
- Review assessments to monitor the child's progress
- Training for parents and professionals
- Summer schools to target language development, speech sounds and social skills
